C. Stanley Klein, who is Sub-Inspector of Ordnance United States Navy, at Bethlehem, Penn., spent the first of the week here the guest of the Edwards family of whom he has been an old friend and long time acquaintance.

Excellent Citizen Passes Away

Walton lost one of its most prominent citizens Thursday morning in the death of Dr. Metcalfe.

Dr. Metcalfe had been in poor health for the past three years. He spent the last two winters in Florida and appeared to improve during his sojourn there and was arranging to spend this winter there, expecting to leave in about a week, but Wednesday night he was attacked with a suffocating feeling that deprived him of his speech and greatly weakened him in his physical condition. It was thought that he would rally out of this prostration but he gradually grew weaker until his spirit was wafted to the Grand Lodge on high to receive the rewards of a well spent life at the hands of the Grand Architect of the universe in whom he had the most abiding faith. Dr. Metcalfe was born in Kenton county and was forty-one years old, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Metcalfe. Nearly all of his life was spent in this locality, and by his kindly nature and generous disposition he was enshrined in the hearts of all who knew him as a valued friend. In every good purpose he was an individual.

Dr. Metcalfe was a noble soul in his community. He was married to Miss Hattie Edwards and she and two daughters, Fay and Lucille, mourn the loss of a most affectionate husband and father. Every care and thought that would contribute to his being restored to health was lavished on him by the devoted wife and affectionate parents, and though death had him marked as a victim of tuberculosis, yet the hope was entertained that this useful life would be spared for a longer period of time. Dr. Metcalfe was a graduate in medicine but gave up the practice some time ago following an accident with a runaway horse in which he was thrown from a buggy and sustained injuries from which he never recovered and which contributed to his early demise.

He was a zealous member of the Eastern Star, Blue Lodge and Royal Ark Masons, and was the secretary of the last two named organizations, and he was beloved by every member who sorrow with the grief stricken relatives over the loss of one whom they will never cease to remember with affection and pride. The funeral will take at two o'clock from the Methodist Church, the charge of

The Grange lodges of Northern Kentucky have arranged to hold a convention at Walton October 30th and 31st, and a good sized attendance is expected.

The rain last week developed the corn and tobacco in a wonderful manner and the crop is coming out fine. There was frost several nights this week but no damage was done, and it rather hastened the ripening of the crops. A thin layer of ice was reported from one locality. The prospect is now for good weather as the first cold period is generally offset by a settled weather condition for several weeks.

A. Records Johnson and John W. Sleet bought from Mrs. Mable Bagby Atwood of Albemarle, New Mexico, the Bagby farm on the Lexington turnpike in Kenton county, near Bracht, containing about 222 acres. Price private. Possession given March next.

Iron Lashley was severely hurt at Richmond last Thursday in unloading an ensilage cutter but fortunately no bones were broken, just a few bad bruises.

Dr. G. C. Rankins, who has made an application to enter the Hospital Corps in the army service, has been notified to appear for examination, and if accepted, will probably leave for France within a short time.

W. O. Rouse has bought about 20 acres of land from W. B. Johnson, a part of the Mrs. Louisa J. Stephenson land near Walton.

Daniel Webster, E. K. Green and John Fordyce of Zion Station, were here Thursday giving depositions in a law case that Mr. Webster has in the Grand Circuit Court over a passway on land adjoining his farm.

C. C. Adams of Williamstown, was here Thursday taking depositions in a law case in which he is an attorney.

Obituary.

Elisha Graham, who died Sept. 9, 1916, was 70 years and ten months old. He is survived by his wife, four daughters, two grand children, and five living brothers; the eldest being 75, the youngest 60 years old. His four daughters were all married and his granddaughter was also married. All his living family attended his funeral with their relatives and friends with sympathy for their sorrow and their departed loved one who was a kind, kind father and grandfather.

God calls our dear ones home, and kind, no friend on earth like him I find; for all of us he did his best, may God grant him eternal rest. God called him home, it was His will, but in our hearts he lingers still; his memory is as dear today as in the hour he passed away.

His loving Wife and Children.

YOUR Railroad

THE L. & N. SYSTEM penetrates the very heart of the industrial South and its steel rails are arteries over which Southern commerce circulates to the markets of the world at a profit to the people of the South.

By creating a railroad in the South, the L. & N. affords constant, lucrative employment to hundreds of thousands of people of the South.

As the South prospers, the duty of the L. & N. to supply increased facilities increases and additional employment is afforded.

During this time the L. & N. is not only supplying good service at minimum rates, but is co-operating with the people of the South in building for the future development of the South.

The annual average payroll of $21,839,547.66 is the means of support for 30,460 L. & N. employees and their families, and is a subject of vital consideration to the welfare of the South, because every one of these employees lives in and spends his money in the South.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company is pre-eminently a Southern road: ninety-six per cent. of its operated mileage is below the Mason and Dixon line, and its interests and the interests of the people of the South are mutual.

The Old Reliable

J. H. Waterhouse of Cincinnati, spent the week here with relatives and friends the guest of Rev. D. E. Bedinger.

Chas. Porter spent part of the past week at Corinth and Williamstown with relatives and friends.

Lambert Rouse, who has been located at Stone, Pike county, Ky., with a large coal mining company, resigned the position and returned home here Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Wilson and two children, of Indianapolis, were visitors here Saturday going to Erlanger to visit his aunt Mrs. Thomas. They had a most pleasant last week to relatives at New Liberty and Glencoe.

Claude E. Harris of Covington was a visitor here Saturday. He has a large number of road contracts in various parts of the state that he is pushing to an early completion before the inclement weather becomes a part of the handicap of road building.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maxwell who have been here on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Hopkins at their pretty Kenton county home, left Sunday for their home at Meridian, Miss., Mr. Maxwell being called home by business matters.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ford and little son and daughter of Cincinnati spent part of the past week here with his mother, Mrs. Mary Ford, and their many friends. Mr. Ford is the paying teller in the Fifth-Third National Bank at Cincinnati and is one of the most popular bank officials in that city.

His Limitations.

The suffragette was handing the congressman some of her mind in small fragments.

"Yes," she said, "I am willing to admit that you possess various talents and are capable of enacting some wonderful acts and noble deeds, but there is one thing which is impossible for you to accomplish."

"What is that?" asked the chap who helps to keep the con in congress.

"You can't wink and work your ears at the same time," answered the fair party of the suffragette part. "Only the much-slandered, but intellectual male can successfully perform that marvelous act."

Seeking Advance Information.

"Mamma," said little Lela, "I'd like to ask your advice about something that is very important."

"What dear, what is it?" said mamma.

"After I get through school," continued the small miss, "what would you advise me to do while waiting for some man to propose?"

Overdoing it.

"You're getting rather thin," remarked the floorwalker to the ribbon counter clerk. "Don't they serve substantial food at your boarding house?"

"Well, rather," replied the yard-stick manipulator. "In fact, some of it is so durable you could not masticate it with another man's jaws."

GAVE HIMSELF AWAY.

MAN AT WORK.

"What is the meaning of the old adage about mowing wood and saying nothing?" asked the innocent maid.

"It means that there is a man on the job," replied the dispenser of home-grown philosophy.

"And why could it not refer to a woman as well as a man?" asked the maid.

"Impossible," answered the local philosophy dispenser. "If a woman had to saw wood the world would certainly hear of it."

Safety First.

The Cook—Of'm after givin' ye notice that O'm golt' I leave, mum.

The Mistress—Why, what's the trouble, June? Are you dissatisfied with your work or your wages?

The Cook—Neither, mum. Me work do be as any an' me wages is plenty, but O'll not stand for so many a varmint callin' on yer daughter, mum.

The Mistress—But they do not interfere with you, do they?

The Cook—No, mum. But O'm afraid payble will be after thinkin' some av thim is a-cillin' on me, O' duns.

Sure It Was That One.

In the course of his weekly sermonette to children Sunday, Dr. H. C. Clipper, pastor of Wall Street Methodist Episcopal church, Jeffersonville, told a story of a little girl who had two nickels, one for herself and one to put in the collection. The child lost one of the nickels.

"Which one do you suppose she lost?" asked the minister of the children sitting in the front rows. A very "human" little boy up on the front seat knew the answer: "The mission-ary nickel was lost."

And that is just the one the little girl in the story decided was the lost nickel.—Indianapolis News.

A Rare Bird.

"Couldn't stand prosperity, eh?"

"That was the trouble, poor fellow."

"Now, that's the difference between a man and a woman. Did you ever hear of a woman who couldn't stand prosperity?"

Deacon's Wisdom.

"Next Sabbath," said Parson Brown, "I am going to preach on 'Economy.'"

"That being the case," rejoined Deacon Smith, "it behooves us to take up the collection before the sermon."

TALKED TOO MUCH.

"I always see right out what I think."

"Dat's no lie, but youse needn't over-think yourself on my account. I'm tired hearin' yer already."

His Experience.

"Do you ever lose your temper?"

"Not often," answered the ultimate consumer, "but I would like to lay my hands on the dealer who sold me five tons of indestructible coal!"

What He Had Missed.

"Darling," he said tenderly, "you are the only girl I ever loved."

"Well," she rejoined, "all I got to say is you have missed a lot of fun."

Just So.

The Maid—Is marriage a failure?

The Grass Widow—Well, I think it is better to have been once than never to have been married at all.

Full Record of Earthquakes.

Systematic earthquake recording has been a part of the work of the United States weather bureau since December, 1914, and it is shown that the United States proper had 150 earthquakes in 1915, three or four of them severe. Stocks noted without instruments are reported from the bureau's 200 regular and many co-operative stations. The bureau has seismographs at Washington and at Northfield, Vt., and has the records of instruments of 18 other institutions scattered from Panama to Alaska and from Hawaii to Porto Rico.

MARTIN CORN SAVER CRIBS AND BINS

Protects your Corn from rats, mice and weather. Lasts a Lifetime

"Rats, fire mould and storms all levy tribute on corn and grain stored in wood cribs or bins.

A very low estimate of the loss of corn due to rats and mice is from 5 to 20 per cent. of the crop. By using steel cribs and bins this loss is added to your profit. Corn that is damaged by weather brings less money and has less feeding value than that which is properly stored. Corn in wooden cribs often moulds or even rots. Fire or lightning may destroy the wood crib and its contents, but the steel is proof against both. You save insurance cost and add to your profit by using steel cribs. Save from 15 to 20 per cent.

Efficiency and Wealth

I am glad to announce, after more than 20 years of active practice, and participation in most of the business activities of my community, that I have not wealth, nor has wealth got me. I mean by this that I am not open to the criticism sometimes justly made of having inherited, married, or otherwise happened to be rich; nor to that other charge sometimes falsely made, sometimes truly made, of having become rich at the expense of some one else, or at the expense of the public. To be not rich at all is in answer to all queries. On the other hand, I mean that I am not poor, and, as I know myself, have always been free from the influence of wealth whether possessed by others or desired by myself. No one can be more contemptible than one who through love of money is continually doing little, small and unprincipled things either to make or keep money. I trust therefore, I occupy a safe place in the opinion of my neighbors to discuss this all-important, ever-present subject in a suggestive way.

The subject is: "Efficiency and Wealth," which, of course, means efficiency in the use of wealth. Efficiency as applied to certain subjects in this section has been suggested to me during my long residence here, my close identification with the people, and my lack of harmony with much that I have seen and lived through. Some of my "friends" have been kind enough to suggest that if I did not like conditions to go elsewhere. That probably would have been best for me, but it was not best for them; so here I am yet. I have known a great many good citizens, in fact, the best citizens do not lack very thing; but have always considered it cowardly and unmanly to move away with wealth to a place already built and prepared to his likings, because he did not like some one or more things; roads, schools, churches, politics or people where he spent his active days. It has always seemed to me a part of duty and manhood to stand one's ground and make, or try to make things go as one would like to have them. That is what I have done, and that is what I am doing now. I hope everybody likes it, but if not, let them say so out loud, and not in a button-holed conversation.

I maintain that there is no wealth but labor, and that efficiency of wealth depends altogether upon the use made of it. These two propositions are capable of indefinite elaboration; but to be brief, as we must be, turn them how we may and analyze them from every standpoint, they will be found absolutely true. The first condemn without reserve or pity every method of acquiring wealth without labor of some kind in the first instance; it may be music, law, medicine, preaching or farming, but something it must be that others are willing to pay for. Cover up how he may and pretend to respectability ever so much, nevertheless every person who is living a considerable period who has no means (stored labor), or does not do something is "necessarily a rogue"; that is, living off or on someone else. Would you be surprised to know that this includes about one-half of the people the world over. Probably there is no person who for some period, short or long, at some time has not played the rogue; that is, getting something for nothing. "There is none perfect, no not one." I do not ask or expect overrighteousness, but I would like to see a great improvement all along that line in this section; particularly I would like to see our people cultivate a more just spirit in rendering to every one his dues, and to cease giving up their earnings to promoters and schemers. Has it ever occurred to you that at least one-half of a million dollars has been taken out of Boone County within the last twenty years on fictitious and unsound investments; not one cent of which ever returned, nor for that matter was intended to be returned. This is enough money to have piked all our roads. Nor is this the end yet. The plenitude of money in the next few months will again make easy subjects in Boone County for the glittering promises of the promoter.

One of the most common, as well as the most unjust means of getting wealth wrongfully is in escaping taxation. Were it possible to correct the wrongs done in that respect for a hundred years back, it would go far towards equalizing fortunes, to cause a redistribution of wealth, which would approach the dreams of the Socialist. This and kindred practices both cause and, to some extent, warrant the unrest manifesting itself throughout the world.

Efficiency; that is, doing things well, creates wealth in proportion to its degree. Wealth may, or should create efficiency when used to that end, by making better preparation possible in all lines of thought and action. It is not so used to a full extent, or to any great extent in this section. It would be a great thing if we would mend our ways in that particular. More boys and girls should go through high school, and more graduates should go to college. The older folks should read more, and put into practice what they know. We are much favored by soil, location and climate; we have a much better country than we realize. It is within our power to make it better, to live easier and make more money by devoting some of our wealth to efficiency; that is, acquiring and using knowledge. A good and substantial system of roads, well maintained, and utilization of established methods of cultivating land, and maintaining the fertility of the soil would in a few years double our wealth. Upon both of these questions we are unquestionably slow. Public sentiment is not right, co-operation is lacking, the leaders of public policy are weak and short-sighted, and people are parsimonious and non-progressive. This thing will result in a lot of tenants being crowded out and a lot of owners being bought out. The world does not stand still, and the man and the people who do will find by and by that they are behind the procession.

This section, like America in general, is money mad; efficiency, culture and sentiment are all being sacrificed in a shortsighted and ignoble drive for money. We have almost forgotten the tremendous struggle and inexpressible sacrifices our fathers made that we might enjoy liberty; and numerous individuals are stinging fine intellect for the loved money. If the war should be long enough and severe enough to cause America to sober up to a realization of the blessings of freedom, to find her soul, as it were, blood and treasure will not have been spent in vain. The greatest lessons of history, as well as our daily experience and observation prove the great truth stated so tersely by Lord Bacon: "Wealth is the baggage of virtue."
